This week, Port Hercules was packed with some of the biggest and latest superyachts as part of the long-awaited Monaco Yacht Show. Having spent five days mingling amongst the likes of Bilgin's 80-metre Tatiana, Feadship's latest 94-metre yacht Viva and Sunreef's 24-metre catamaran Great White, show-goers and industry players revelled in the opportunity to be back at a live event.

This year, the Monaco Yacht Show took on a new format to improve the calibre of visitors and quality of the show. With that and the enforced covid-19 regulations, the show still came with the happy atmosphere that makes it all so enjoyable, as seen in some of these dockside snapshots:

Nobakrug's 2019 delivery, the 80m Artefact, stood out in the crowd thanks to her four high decks and quirky superstructure.

To navigate the central jetty, guests would walk alongside the largest Turkish-built yacht, Tatiana.

The iconic Lürssen yacht for sale SKAT was on show with Fraser.

Guests who came aboard the new Mangusta Oceano 50 could find her unique pool area.
